

DEPARTMENT OF KAYACHIKITSA

INTRODUCTION:

Kayachikitsa (or Internal medicine), is formed of two words where Kaya means 'body' and Chikitsa means 'treatment'. It is first of the eight branches mentioned in classical texts of Ayurveda.

It mainly deals with diagnosis and treatment of various Somatic and Psychological health problems related to both acute and chronic illness.

Kaya also refers to metabolic activities or Agni including various digestive juices. Ayurveda believes that imbalance or disturbance in our digestive system is the root cause of multiple diseases. Hence, the Chikitsa also involves correcting the digestive fire or Agni to restore good health.

The treatment also involves correcting the imbalance caused due to Tridoshaviz. Vata, Pitta and Kapha which are three driving biological forces governing the whole physiology of body in health and disease.

Thus the approach of Kayachikitsa involves the comprehensive management to establish a harmony between body and mind.

The treatment encompasses a range of various internal and external medications, detoxification process along with specialized therapy and individualized approach to treat the disorder.
